

LOOKING 'EM OVER

BY LOUIS A. DOUGHER

Football Season Approaching

Saw Charlie Cox out at the ball yard Sunday afternoon, which reminded us that another football campaign is approaching fast. In three weeks many squads will be limbering up. In four weeks practically all Northern squads will be in uniform, with their Southern brethren trailing along one by one. And there is every indication that the king of college sports will have another banner year, keeping up the good work of last season, when the crowds broke all records.

Though a hundred tinkers swarmed about the Intercollegiate Football Committee last winter with their brainy suggestions, hardly any were adopted. A few minor changes, not noticeable to the lovers of the game, have been made in the rules, but as a whole it will be the same wonderful contest as of yore, a beautiful struggle between two collections of strong, sturdy young men, trained to the minute, possessing speed of eye, of foot, and of brain. The carefully-laid schemes of certain coaches with special formations to exploit failed when brought out at the committee meeting. It will be the same old game.

And yet close observers will note a change in the game. For the first time in forty-five years, or since the game was introduced in our colleges, the punt-out will not be taken. No, they've taken that bit of football flimsy away.

For forty-five years, if an eleven scored a touchdown nearer the side of the field than the center, it would have to resort to the punt-out to land in a better position for its try-at-goal. But this coming season, with the punt-out abolished, all goals from touchdowns will be right in front of the goal posts.

A conservative in our football beliefs, we shall miss the punt-out. Indeed, we think it might far better have been retained.

A quarterback now won't have to maneuver his attack within the 10-yard lines in order to score as near the uprights as possible. He may jam the ball over anywhere, knowing that the succeeding try-at-goal will be from a position midway between the sidelines anyway.

On a heavy field with a wet ball, the change should make it a bit easier to obtain that extra point from a touchdown goal, but on the whole the scores will not differ much from those of other years. It will be just as hard to score touchdowns as ever, and touchdowns decide games usually.

Fantastic changes, suggested from many quarters, failed to impress the lords of football. Most of them were suggested to fit certain teams or certain theories of coaching. They failed rightly.

THOROUGH TEST COMES.

A thorough test is coming to the theories of at least two well known coaches, Dobbie and Johnny Heisman. Dobbie is in charge at Cornell and Heisman at Pennsylvania.

Dobbie made a marvelous record for victories on the Pacific coast. Com-

BUTLER PULLS A TENDON AND IS OUT OF OLYMPIAD

By JACK VIEOCK.

ANTWERP, Aug. 17.—America's chances of winning the Olympic broad jump were dealt a severe blow today when Sol Butler, the Dubuque, Iowa, negro, pulled a tendon in his first jump and was forced to retire. His leap did not qualify him.

R. L. Templeton, of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, and Johnson qualified. J. M. Merchant, of San Francisco, also failed to qualify.

It had been regarded as practically certain that Butler would win this event.

William Plant, Morningside A. C., New York; T. A. Maroney, St. Anselm A. A., New York; and J. B. Pearson, New York, also qualified for the 30-meter walk.

Pat MacDonald, the huge policeman shot-putter of the New York A. C., easily qualified for the shotput. H. D. Liveridge, of the navy, also qualified. G. H. Bihlman, Olympic Club, San Francisco, and G. H. Cann of the New York A. C. however, fell short and were shut out.

WILL DECIDE DISPUTE.

The last of the protest over placing of the men by judges of the 100 meter dash yesterday has not been heard. Motion pictures of the event have been developed and projected. They show clearly that three Americans, Paddock, Kirksey and Scholz, crossed the finish first, in the order named. Edwards of England, Ali Khan, the French-Algerian, and Loren Murchison of the New York A. C., finished in the order named.

A meeting of the Olympic committee was to be held this afternoon to take action on the protest. Official action was expected to result, with a possibility that the awards might be changed.

Nicklander, the Finnish giant, was best in the trial for the shot, his toss reaching 47 feet 6 1/2 inches. Forhola, Finland; Nilsson, Sweden, and Hammer, of Easthonia, also qualified.

FOUR HURDLERS QUALIFY.

Four American athletes qualified for the trials in the 110-meter hurdles. They are H. E. Barron, Meadowbrook Club, Philadelphia; W. Yount, Los Angeles A. C.; Fred S. Murray, New York A. C., and Walker Smith of the Chicago Athletic Association.

Barron's performance was especially notable. He defeated Earl Thompson, Canada's star representative, who holds the world's record for the 110-yard hurdles.

R. W. Landen, of the New York A. C., accumulated more points for the

Flea Comes in and Writes This

A flea came into the Washington Times office yesterday during the shower and wrote this:

"The All-Stars Jrs. and the Marine Midlets called their game on account of rain. The All-Stars will play the Fourteenth Street Stars today on the Monument Lot on Diamond No. 3 at 1 o'clock.

American team when he won the high jump final. Still more were added when H. P. Miller, of the Olympic Club, San Francisco, tied with Eke-lund, of Sweden, for second place.

Baker, of England, tied with J. Murphy, Multnomah Club, Portland, Ore., and W. L. Whalen, Boston A. A., for fourth place. Every American who qualified for the event won points for his team.

COAST PLAYER BANNED.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.—William G. Rumber, Salt Lake City outfielder, was indefinitely suspended today by President William H. McCarty of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, following receipt of an affidavit from Rumber that he and "Babe" Borton, suspended Vernon first baseman, had $250 on the outcome of the pennant race last season.

ing to the Naval Academy, he turned out fine gridiron machines which were usually victorious. In three years three defeats were chalked up against Dobbie's Navy teams, West Virginia, Great Lakes, and Georgetown turning the trick.

During Dobbie's regime at Annapolis, it was the general belief that "soft" schedules greatly aided the Midshipmen, and that strong teams were winners over the sailors. If there is real merit in the Dobbie system, it should be shown at Cornell.

The alumni are aiding the new coach in obtaining sufficient time for teaching his squad, and Cornell never has had a "soft" schedule. Indeed, it has frequently much too much for weak eleven turned out at Ithaca.

WAS AT GEORGIE TECH.

Heisman, the new Pennsylvania tutor of gridiron ethics, was at Georgia Tech last season, flouting a spectacular career. While the Golden Tornado played in Dixie, it was unbeatable. It met its defeat when it strayed toward the North Pole, losing twice at Pittsburgh to Glenn S. Warner's powerful aggregations. Of course, now and then it lost to Southern eleven, for instance, to Washington and Lee last fall, but for several seasons past Georgia Tech was well nigh insurmountable.

ALLOYSIUS AND WINSTON MEET AS INDEPENDENTS

By BRYAN MORSE.

The Fitzgeralds, the Duffys, McCann, McMahon, Reardon, Costello, and Sweeney—both why go further—the Aloysius Club, cock o' th' walk around North Capitol and I streets, plays Winston Athletic Club today in the Independent series. The game will be staged at Union Park, Fifteenth and H streets northeast. It will be the second battle in the down-and-out championship series. While this interesting contest is being waged the Naval Operations team, title winner in the Government League, will stack up against the Main Building team, winner of the much-disputed War Department title. This battle is the second of the league contests.

Aloysius Club is rated as a first-class team composed mostly of young players. The Aloysius lads have a formidable array of players in E. Mader, Costello, Holbrook, T. Pollard, Steele, B. Collins and Skillman.

Winston A. C. picks its team from Tweedie, Stevens, Linn, Calhoun, Lieb, Lewis, Hilton, Woodstock, Kagle, Hoffman, Ferguson, Beall, Duescher, Shipman, Houck, Higgins, C. Woodcock, Atherton, Mayhew, Hughes, Behrle, Bernhart, Bateman, Richardson, Brayton and Shoemaker.

Navy Department baseball players eligible for today's game are Genat Newton, E. G. Purdy, Charles Beard, Pete Lynch, D. J. Houlihan, R. T. Harnsberger, F. P. Clark, F. G. RAY CHAPMAN DIES OF SKULL FRACTURE

Pitcher Mays Exonerated of Blame for Accident to Cleveland Shortstop.

First Big Leaguer to Be Killed

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Ray Chapman is the first major league baseball player to be killed by a pitched ball, so far as modern records show. Semi-pro and amateur players have been killed in such a fashion, but major leagues have been free from such accidents.

Informed by the International News Service that Chapman was dead. "It is something likely to happen to any ball player," he said. "It is nothing but a miracle that Chick Fawcett is alive today. When he was hit on the head by Jeff Pfeffer, at Jacksonville last spring, we rushed him to the best expert in the country and an operation was performed."

CALL OFF GAME.

The New York American League club announced early today that there would be no game between the Cleveland and New York clubs today, owing to Chapman's death. The game will be played later.

Chapman was injured in the fifth inning of yesterday's game. Struck on the head, he sat up in a sitting position, his head quivering. He became unconscious immediately, and Umpire Connelly called two physicians from the grandstand. They ordered his immediate removal to St. Lawrence Hospital. X-ray photographs showed a decompressed fracture and trephining was attempted.

An incision three and a half inches long was made through the skull on the left hand side. A piece of the skull and a quantity of clotted blood were removed. The shortstop was on the operating table an hour.

STAR OF THE GAME.

Chapman was twenty-nine years old. He was born at Owensboro, Ky., January 15, 1891.

His first venture into professional baseball was made in 1910, when he became a member of the Davenport club of the Three I League, later being transferred to Springfield of the same league. Toledo, of the American Association, bought him at the end of the season and he was sold to Cleveland in 1912. He had played shortstop regularly as a member of that club ever since.

Chapman alternated at times at second base and third base, but was regarded purely as a shortstop and one of the best in the major leagues. He had a batting average of .300 during his stay in the game.

CHAPMAN'S DEATH MAY SHATTER BOTH OUTFITS

Neither Indians Nor Yanks Expected to Maintain Pace in Hot Race Now.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—The death of Ray Chapman, shortstop of the Cleveland American league club, not only saddens everyone who ever met the brilliant player, but may likely have a disastrous effect on the nerves of both the Indians and Yankees clubs which now are locked in a struggle for the American League pennant.

Carl Mays, who pitched the ball that struck Chapman, quite likely will not recover from the shock of the fatality until after this season has passed. Mays' umpire, it is certainly unfortunate that Mays was selected by the fates for the fatal pitch.

The underhand star has had his share of trouble in baseball and was trying hard to overcome handicaps due to his unsteady nerves. His work was taking him to the top among the league's pitchers and his conduct was exemplary.

Mays probably is lost to the Yankees—a hard blow to that team's pennant hopes, but the blow to Cleveland is infinitely worse, for it means the club probably will have to struggle along with an inferior shortstop. Chapman was a brilliant fielder and a 300 hitter. It may mean the loss of a pennant for the forest city.

Dale said that the three games he pitched against the Vernon club were lost through better playing by that club.

Best Bottle Javelin Hurlers to Represent America in the Glassware Olympics.

People who live near glass houses shouldn't throw decisions.

It's dangerous. Just like making a noise like a peanut near the elephant boudoir in the Bronx Zoo. Every decision is good for a crate of pop bottles, F. O. B. The F. O. B. standing for fracture of bean. There has been a great improvement in pop bottle twirling in all the league towns. The Polo Ground bugs put on a Glassware Olympic last Sunday. They threw the pop javelins all over the works. When they ran out of bottles the infield looked like a delicatessen store trying to straddle an earthquake.

GLASSWARE OLYMPICS.

A total stranger tried to sock Bernie Neils with a demijohn of dill pickles. Bernie was catching a fly ball, and the guy with the Grade A partisanship couldn't wait to go through the formality of an introduction. The loving cup just missed Neils by the size of an ump's hat. The narrowest of margins. Another bleacher weevil tossed a milk bottle at Ump Quigley and then looked accusingly at a month-old fan in a baby carriage. If they are going to continue these Glassware Olympics, the board of health ought to order soda pop served in hot-water bags.

The bugs believed in the old adage, "Save the bottle and spoil the ump." Cap Huston is going to pass a sign-inning by compelling Harry Stevens to peddle ginger ale in lily cups.

LILY CUPS.

The hard-boiled glass bottles are lily cups. Lillies for the ump's. A good way to serve soft drinks would be with sponges. Soak the sponge in lemon soda and let the fan cut his teeth on it. If he became loaded with an umpical mania, he could hurl sponges at the ump's all day without breaking more than six of the ten commandments and amendments. An umpire should be protected from the mob unless it is absolutely necessary. If they put up screens to keep foul tips out, they should put up nets to keep the fair ball in.

It's all right to crack an umpire in the open season, but before hurling the glassware, remember that you may have little ums of your own some day.

Until Lloyd George, Clemenceau, and Woody get together to figure out the percentages, Harry Stevens will serve nothing in the grandstands but cream puffs, lemon meringues, and other Mack Sennett scenarios.

The fans can throw as usual, nobody will be denied, and the bugs will have a water's satisfaction of serving something that wasn't ordered.

NAVY YARD LEAGUERS IN SCRAMBLE FOR HONORS

Zone 6 and Zone 1 to Battle It Out Today in Determining Pennant Winner.

Zone 6 will probably send Frye in against Zone 1 today in an effort to land the pennant honors. Yesterday Zone 1 came through and won by 6 to 4. There was plenty of hot argument during the contest. Zone 1 won for the Zone 6 team will put that aggregation out in front. Frye was held in reserve yesterday but Zone 1 got away with the battle.

In the event that Zone 1 comes through today another battle will be necessary and will probably be staged tomorrow.

Over in Congress Heights there is a mad run for pennant honors just as in the Navy Yard League. Naval Air Station and Congress Heights are sticking it out. The league season will wind up this week, a meeting will probably be held Saturday night and three games will be staged next week beginning Sunday.

They are quite mad about baseball in the Southeast and also across the Anacostia river these days.

AMERICAN LEAGUE MUST TAKE ACTION

So Says President Griffith, Speaking of Death of Chapman on Diamond.

By LOUIS A. DOUGHER.

"The time has come now for the American League to take some decided action regarding Carl Mays' method of pitching," said President Clark Griffith, of the Washington club, today, as he expressed his grief at the death of Ray Chapman, the Cleveland shortstop, who was felled by one of Carl Mays' "bean balls" yesterday.

"It is doubly unfortunate that Chapman, the highest type of a young American, should be a victim of illegal pitching. I shall make every effort myself to have some action taken by the league just as soon as possible."

"I believe that is a matter that requires league action. Mays' pitching habits have caused trouble for several years. Now he has killed a player. The time has come for action to replace words."

The St. Louis and Washington players were buzzing today, as they heard the details of Chapman's death. It is expected that both teams will reach a decision today at the ball park to send an official protest to President B. B. Johnson against the further appearance of Mays in the league.

Several of the Brownies are especially vehement in their criticism of Mays, remembering their own narrow escapes from serious harm. They mince no words as they tell what they think of the Yankees' submarine finger. "Man killer" and "murderer" are the politer phrases heard around the lobby of the Harrington hotel, headquarters of the Browns.

GLEASON AND BONO ARE COMING FOR REAL TESTS

Shreveport Texas Leaguers Are Headed for Trials With Griffith's Squad.

President Clark C. Griffith has obtained two more pitchers for trial, Gleason and Bono, both right handers from the Shreveport club in the Texas League. Jimmy O'Neill, the Griffith's shortstop, is a graduate of the Shreveport club of 1919.

"I don't know just how good these fellows are, but I'm going to give them a trial," said Griffith today. "My scouts have sent in good reports about both of them."
